

Educational Psychology Service Helpline for Settings and Families

In response to the current coronavirus pandemic, Plymouth Local Authority's Educational Psychology Service are offering advice and support to our settings and families during this difficult time through an additional telephone helpline.

If you are concerned about your child's emotional wellbeing or managing their behaviour then please ring for professional advice, support or practical strategies. We offer psychological support for children and young people aged 0–25 years.

We can offer consultation around issues such as struggling with emotions, behaviour, learning or communication difficulties. The usual confidentiality and consent procedures will apply.

Parents/carers, children and young people

- Call Plymouth Information Advice & Support (PIAS) during office hours on 01752 258933 option 2
- You will be offered support and/or signposted to a link Educational Psychologist

For staff in schools and settings
