UNIVERSITY WEBINARS

PHYSICS

On 27th February, we have two great interactive university micro talks within the theme of Quantum Physics.

We will hear from Dr Lisa Morrison from University of Surrey who will discuss Quantum Physics and the Colour of Light. Lisa will explore how quantum mechanics has re-shaped our understanding of light to have an ongoing impact in science, technology, and engineering today.

Developing this theme, we are then joined by Professor Mark Fromhold from University of Nottingham who will look at Quantum Physics and New Technologies. Mark considers a new wave of “quantum 2.0” technologies, including revolutionary brain scanners, which work by harnessing the quantum waves either of atoms or of electrons inside atoms.

This session is ideal for Physics and Engineering groups as well as individuals taking part from school/college or home. We hope you can join us.

- February 27 @ 11:00 - 12:00 insight4me Physics: Quantum Physics with Nottingham & Surrey (KS5) <https://www.channeltalent.co.uk/event/insight4me-physics-quantum-physics/>

ENGLISH LITERATURE

In February we will be joined by Dr Jessica R Valdez who will stimulate and guide the discussion, considering and developing students' thoughts and arguments on Dorian Gray via pre-submitted and live questions/thoughts. On 20th March, Professor Nick Selby will create a similarly informal and collaborative environment to examine Streetcar.

These sessions present great opportunities for KS5 students to discuss their ideas in a university style forum whilst gaining invaluable insights into these texts from the academics at UEA and from other participating students and teachers.

CREATIVE WRITING

We are really looking forward to welcoming Dr Philip Langeskov, Associate Professor in Creative Writing at University of East Anglia, who, on February 28th, will run a Creative Writing workshop for students.

In the workshop, Philip aims to help 'unlock the stories you carry inside', firstly by discussing a painting, then a poem, exploring the ideas and feelings they evoke, and then experimenting with writing in a safe, collaborative and creative environment. In the past we have been blown away by the process and the contributions from students and fully expect another fabulous event. (Some student feedback from last year: 'I already wanted to apply to study creative writing but was a bit wary. By joining this I began to rethink my overthinking and had a realisation that this is the path I want to take in life.')

FILM STUDIES

Keith M Johnston, Professor of Film & Television Studies at University of East Anglia will join us on 11th March to discuss How and Why the Film Trailer Took Over the World.

Keith will explore the historic rise of the film trailer and its increased influence across the promotional media industries. Keith will consider how trailers developed, their structure and style, and what role audiences have played in that history: how the film industry imagines its audiences (domestic and global), and how audiences have used trailers to make decisions, make predictions, and (more recently) make their own trailer spoof and reaction videos.

HISTORY

Dr Jan Vermeiren is Associate Professor in Modern German History at UEA and, on 4th March, presents Strong or Weak Dictator? Hitler and the Nazi Political System.

Jan notes that, to contemporaries and many historians since the end of the Nazi regime, Hitler appeared as the undisputed leader of the German nation, with many arguing that without him, there would have been no rise of the Nazis, no Third Reich, no Second World War, and no Holocaust. In this interactive talk, Jan investigates these ideas and discusses the arguments of those who have portrayed Hitler as a 'weak dictator' instead.

NATURAL SCIENCES

On March 4th, Dr Ilija Rašović from University of Birmingham and representing Society for Natural Sciences will look at how chemical bonds are employed to create new materials and, with a particular focus on carbon, will explore the development and potential of carbon nanomaterials to address some of the most pressing technological questions humanity faces.

- March 4 @ 12:45 - 13:30 Society for Natural Sciences: How Chemical Bonds Make Magic Materials - The Case Of Carbon (KS5) <https://www.channeltalent.co.uk/event/history-university-interactive-talk-on-germany-1918-1945/>

CRIMINAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS

On March 11th, Professor Dimitrios Giannouloupoulos, a distinguished criminal law and human rights academic from Goldsmiths, University of London, will discuss the UK Government's plan to send refugees to Rwanda. Dimitrios will reflect on how the UK Supreme Court struck the Rwanda scheme down, exploring the process and the various institutional parties involved in shaping the judgment of the five Justices panel, and offering an analysis of the Government response.

Dimitrios will also offer contextual analysis of the Rwanda scheme, arguing that it 'is part and parcel of a campaign to diminish the influence of the European Court of Human Rights', ongoing since 2010

ENGLISH AND PSYCHOLOGY

Designed particularly for English Language and Psychology students, on March 4th we are joined by Dr Evelyne Mercure from Goldsmiths, University of London who will run an interactive and engaging session on Child Language Development.

Evelyne will introduce perceptual narrowing, a phenomenon that allows a baby to transition from being a universal language listener to one specialised in the sounds of their native language. Evelyne will then move on to examine how infants progress from babbling to vocabulary acquisition and how the introduction of grammar allows them to gradually produce more complete sentences.

We look forward to welcoming groups and individuals for this enlightening Linguistics event.

PSYCHOLOGY AND BIOLOGY

We are looking forward to a fascinating session on 29th February in which Dr Teodora Gliga will examine the relationship between memory and sleep. Teodora will explore why sleep is important for short term memories to become long term memories, the use of brain imaging to decipher the role of the hippocampus, the thalamus and the cortex in memory consolidation, and how new research tries to develop methods to train our brain waves in order to improve sleep (and therefore, learning).

This is an excellent opportunity for Psychology and Biology groups and individuals. Please share with colleagues and students and we hope you can join us.

COMPUTER SCIENCE

Dr Robert Blair from the School of Computing Sciences at University of East Anglia joins us on 27th February to discuss Algorithms, Ethics & Legislation.

Robert, noting the apparent willingness with which new and transformative technologies are being embraced, will consider:

- the evolution of algorithms, computing, machine learning and AI
- the confluence of factors leading to the current state of smart technologies
- ethical challenges which have arisen
- how legislation has developed to address these ethical challenges
- how computer scientists can mitigate for some of these ethical and legal challenges

This session offers an excellent insight for Computer Science students, groups and individuals, into the critical issues of ethics and legislation within their field. It will also be suitable for those studying or interested in this increasingly complex area of Law.

SPORT PSYCHOLOGY

On 5th March, we are joined by Dr Nicholas de Cruz, ex international athlete and sailing world champion who is now an academic in the field of sport psychology at University of Surrey. Nicholas will present Being a Sport Psychologist: From Athlete to Academic.

Using his own journey as a case study, Nick will explore the evolving field of sport psychology, the challenges and pivotal moments faced, and the various avenues available to become a sport psychologist.

This is suitable for aspiring sport psychologists, athletes, and those interested in the intersection of sports and psychology. We welcome groups and individuals. Please do share and we hope you can join us.

WOMEN AND HEALTHCARE

For International Women's Day 2024, Dr Joy Hawkins, Lecturer in Humanities in the Interdisciplinary Institute for the Humanities at University of East Anglia will explore Women and Healthcare – Medieval Origins and Practices.

Joy considers the large disparities found in the proportion of men and women undertaking specific jobs within medicine and healthcare in the twenty-first century. By looking at the role of women as both healthcare providers and consumers in the late medieval period, Joy will examine whether some of the pre-modern beliefs about women and medicine can help us understand the inequalities we see today.

It promises to be an extremely illuminating and engaging session and ideal for marking IWD '24. It is open to groups and individuals.

The competition is open to young people across the UK and national and regional winners will get to work with teams like BBC Breakfast, The One Show or Newsround to produce their story for TV, radio, online or on social media with the help of BBC journalists, producers and programme-makers.

SIXTH FORM OPPORTUNITIES

BULLETIN

VOLUNTEERING

The Plymouth Mass Vaccination Team at Homepark. We are looking to recruit more volunteers this year to assist with running our busy vaccination clinics at Homepark and our Outreach clinics in the Plymouth area.

This role covers both inside and outside stewarding where they would be expected to direct patients, marshalling carparking, managing queues etc.

Please see the link below where the students can apply to volunteer with us.
